

A busy year ahead for Junior Chamber

The Castleknock branch of the Junior Chamber (JCC) is gearing up for a busy year with a new president at the helm.

Aine Coulter was elected president of the branch at the Chamber's AGM last month and will have plenty to occupy her judging by the Chamber's hectic schedule of events for the coming weeks and months.

Junior Chamber Castleknock, the local branch of the international personal and leadership development organisation for young people, will be familiar to many in the area through its co-ordination of the "giving tree" at the Blanchardstown Centre over the Christmas period. JCC's Susan Taylor said the giving tree was one of the highlights of the branch's activities during the year.

The Castleknock branch also found the time to send a delegation to the Junior Chamber's World Congress in Vienna, where its members performed a set dance at a VIP reception hosted by the Irish Ambassador to Austria.

JCC events in the coming year include hosting mock interviews for school children, table quizzes, the annual JCC Ireland meeting in Cobh, the Burns Supper in Edinburgh and the world congress in Seoul, South Korea.

The Castleknock branch meets at 8:30 p.m. on the second Monday of every month upstairs in Myo's pub. For further details contact the branch at castleknock@jci-ireland.org
